Freedom article publishing charge

This journal is open access, which means that anyone can access the articles published, anywhere in the world. Authors with funding, institutional support or from commercial organisations should select the recommended article publishing charge (APC) of 1350 USD (plus tax) to support sustainable open access publishing. Authors without direct funding should explore all options for funding the publication of their article.

Please confirm what contribution you can make if your article is accepted by our editors. The amount selected should include any discount that you're entitled to.

- $1350 USD (Recommended)
- I need to pay a different amount

$1,350

Great! Your contribution will cover the costs of reviewing, publishing, curating and disseminating your accepted work, and will also allow us to invest in future services and technology. Thank you.

- I cannot pay the minimum APC
- I accept responsibility for payment of the APC I have selected above if my work is accepted for publication

We appreciate your contribution towards your APC. The sustainability of open access publishing and our 'pay what you can' model relies on such contributions towards these costs – why not speak to your librarian, faculty or research funder about the support available? Many institutions have established funds to support open access publishing and most funding bodies will permit the use of research grant funds to cover the costs of article publishing charges.

Please provide a reason for not paying the recommended APC

The science bit... how does it work?

Aries' Ingest Feature

Once an author clicks submit all data is tagged using JATS XML and files are packaged up into Zip files which are sent to Aries' FTP server

Metadata and files are extracted and ingested into the relevant journal's Editorial Manager site

Information about the peer review status is then fed back to the portal using an API so the author always has an accurate status throughout the process.

Some Stats!

- Number of applications built = 7!
- Months in development = 3 months to MVP, 8 months to full release
- Number of journals using the submission portal = >190
- Number of Submissions (original and revised) = >8000
